

Embodying the Unifying Principle

An essay by James Mahu

moci.life

Embodying the Unifying Principle

Question:

Energy is a word that we all use every day, but it feels like it has so many different definitions. You wrote a paper entitled, The Energetic Heart some years ago, and it was the first time I thought of energy in that way. In terms of the Sovereign Path, what is energy?

Answer:

Energy is will. In the context of spacetime, it is free will. Energy, therefore, is free will in spacetime duality. Why free will? Because it is either the decision or reaction to take action. And without either one, there is no energy. There are different scales of energy, and this continuum is vast, but at every scale, it remains an action of free will, even when those actions are simply extensions of the laws of physics or science at large. These laws were created by free will.

Energy is divided into different classes, but each of these is physical in dimension, that is to say, they can be measured scientifically. These different classifications include: chemical energy, mechanical energy, nuclear energy, gravitational energy, light energy, radiant energy, sound energy, motion energy, thermal energy, and electrical energy.

These are all physical manifestations of energy from quantum to material that also occur at a nonphysical level, which is to say, they exist in both physical and nonphysical universes. The nonphysical is the cause of the inception point of free will, and the physical is the effect of the action. Thus, the finite, material world is the creation of the infinite, nonphysical worlds. This is how energy innately flows. However, physical energy interacts with other forms of physical energy.

For example, gravitational energy interacts with light energy. Thus, while physical energy has its source from nonphysical domains, it can interact with other physical energies, and those interactions can rebound upon the nonphysical realms. This reverse interaction is what creates the cycle of energy—its flow and dynamism.

This cycle is the way energy can specialize in form and function, adapting to the ongoing evolution of the physical universe. You may have noticed that in the classifications I listed earlier in this essay that they were missing biological energy, which is indeed odd, because if we were to sum the energy of biological life forms on earth, we would see that this level of energy is infinitely larger than any other form of planetary energy.

Biology is precisely where energy inhabits the physical realm with the strongest presence of free will. Energy that is mechanical in nature, meaning that it follows the laws of physics; that energy holds a diluted amount of free will. Its natural state is to follow mathematics. It is to be predictable and stable. However, as previously stated, the laws of physics were created from free will. The Prime Creator created a “stage” upon which biological life forms could operate. This stage needed to be predictable in order for the biological life forms to survive and reproduce, and thereby, evolve energy through free will.

However, when energy interacts with predictable energies, as each energy intermixes, it gathers complexity, and this complexity begins to confound our abilities to predict it. Weather patterns are like this, to name one obvious example.

The predictable, non-biologic forms of energy, as they become complex ecosystems become unpredictable. And this unpredictability can be further confounded and influenced by the energetic radiations of biology. Energy radiates. It moves in spacetime. As our physicists have discovered, this movement is nonlocal, as much as it is local. And it is entangled in some mysterious way.

We, as human beings, are both a finite being with physical borders we call skin, and a battery that lasts about 75 years, on average. This finite self is where our physical energy moves, and where free will directs this energy. However, this energy has a nonphysical source, and this source is our Infinite Self. Our Infinite Self is consciousness, which is energy, which is interconnected with our ultimate source of energy—our planet and sun.

Earth is truly a system. The physical earth system includes the sun. The nonphysical system is the multiversal stage of the Prime Creator. The energies of this multiversal stage makes biological life on earth part of this broader system. Each of us live in this same Infinite System. Our causal energy is drawn from this “well.” It is the source of free will, individuation and sovereignty as a state of consciousness. It contains our Infinite Self.

The Infinite System has five parts:

- Local universe (individuated finite self)
- Nonlocal multiverse
- Infinite Self (individuated sovereign)

- Infinite Being (planetary in nature)
- Prime Creator (multiversal in nature)

And this Infinite System produces two outputs:

- Source Intelligence that interconnects life (integral consciousness)
- One Dimension that unifies life (integral stage)

The earth system, also referred to in these works, as the Infinite Being, is the transducer of the multiversal energy from the Prime Creator, and it goes out to all physical life forms. This biological energy is localized at a quantum level within each life form at its inception. This quantum energy is then materialized over a gestational period of spacetime, powering the DNA of that particular species, enabling physical birth. Throughout gestation, the Infinite Self intermittently connects with the developing finite life form, assessing its development and connecting with its mother's and Earth's physical energy.

This inceptional energy can take the biological structure of an ant, a crow, an oak tree, a dolphin, a butterfly, a cactus, a human, it doesn't matter. The Infinite Being powers every finite life form in biological expression upon earth, and it does this through the consciousness of the life form. And as stated previously, the Infinite Self is individual, sovereign consciousness.

Consciousness is another word for Infinite. Yet, consciousness radiates in different forms. The planetary system (which includes the sun), constitutes the Infinite Being. This is the localization of life on a planetary level. The Infinite Being is an energy node of a universal, infinitely scaled, network of energy. And each of us, is a node within the Infinite Being, and that is our Infinite Self. And that Infinite Self is our sovereign source of radiant energy. That is where our finite self derives free will.

Thus, biological energy is free will in action taken by a life form. Energy is both local and nonlocal, meaning it is both physical in its manifestation and energetic at its causative levels. It also means that energy is both unpredictable, because of free will, and predictable, because of the laws of physics. And this is true in theory, only so long as the form of energy is singular and noninteractive. And is there anything in the universe that is singular and noninteractive in a local spacetime?

The answer is "no." So, using this logic, energy is unpredictable, because we live in complex systems of spacetime duality. We are biological, and a facet of the Infinite Being at a planetary-solar level. One day, we will be at a planetary-solar-galactic level. And later, one day we will be at a galactic-universal level. And then a Universal-Multiversal level. The energy shifts and evolves to encompass multiversal dimensions, which is its innate mode of existence. The finest branch finds the deepest root.

That is when the finite and Infinite can blend into one consciousness, and remain in an infinitely individuated, sovereign self, even within a biological life form with free will. This is the evolution of energy through a biological life form. Energy is free will. Free will is our choice to blend the Infinite with the finite. This “blending” is the partnership of free will between our Infinite Self and our finite self.

This is how we, as individuals, evolve our personal energy. We organize and structure a union of these two energies (finite and infinite).

What is the Unifying Principle that brings a union to finite and infinite states of consciousness and being? It is to align our finite self (body, mind, emotions, ego, and subconscious) to our Infinite Self in order to realize the Infinite System we all live within. We see our purpose, as a finite and Infinite Self, to localize the Infinite System in spacetime duality. That is the Unifying Principle, and until our finite self understands this Unifying Principle, it is unable to blend wills with its Infinite Self.

Our Infinite Self is impeccable. It is not accustomed to compromise.

Therefore, it will not blend itself with the finite self until it recognizes that the finite self, in application of its free will, chooses to become a partner with our acknowledged and ever-present Infinite Self. It is an explicit choice taken with great commitment. To do otherwise, we are simply testing our commitment and its value to our finite life. The partnership must be welded together. Otherwise, its energy will not stay blended in service to the Unifying Principle.

The Unifying Principle is perhaps the most important principle of biological consciousness, and therefore energy, and therefore our finite self and its local universe.

This is not a game. There is no rush to be partners with our Infinite Self or to realize that we are biological and can localize the Infinite System in spacetime duality. We are not competing for a prize or recognition. No one holds a stopwatch to time our realization, and then compare our time with others. No one wins or loses. It is sovereign, internal, unique, innovative, unpredictable, infinite and unfolds with unconditional love.

Though it is not a game, it is also not a sterile lab experiment. Nor is it a throw of the dice that we exist as a sovereign representative of every level of the multiversal reality that exists in every dimension of spacetime. It is a very honorable purpose to realize the Unifying Principle and localize the Infinite System in every dimension we exist to the best of our abilities. This is a conscious intention, and its resulting behavior is imperfect if measured by finite standards.

“Localize” means our behavior in the nonphysical and physical levels of existence. We access and express our free will and energy of the finite and Infinite Self in service of localizing the Infinite System. It means our behavior expresses imperfect, unconditional love, because we are finite expressions of our Infinite Self. We do this not out of effort to perform, but out of our investment to understand that unconditional love—our deepest understanding of the Unifying Principle and the Infinite System—becomes our interpreter and expresser of life.

We become a blended consciousness that is finite and infinite. Our finite self understands that it is also an Infinite Self that is interconnected with all other life forms and the Infinite Being that is our shared planetary system. This is a collective consciousness that is not parsed by spacetime. We exist in totality, and recognizing even a glimpse of this underlying truth transforms us. Once we internalize this realization—even if only as a fleeting sense—we become alchemists, actively pursuing the Sovereign Path and embodying the Unifying Principle.